

The Ohio No-Till Council was formed in 1994 through the efforts of ten no-till farmers. The statewide organization now has over 285 members, including farmers and other agribusiness professionals. The Council publishes its research findings and other helpful communications through the Ohio No-Till News page of the Ohio's Country Journal. (www.ocj.com) In addition, members have also helped organize the annual Tri-State Conservation Tillage Conference for Ohio, Pennsylvania, and New York, and the annual Ohio No-Tillage Conference.
